To Whom It May Concern

I would like to mention how important the religious guidance of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh for me and my therapy work with people is.

After my training as a retoucher in a large German newspaper publishing house, I began to study social work in 1972. I completed this in 1975 and since then I work with people from all backgrounds and walks of life. An intense period of primal therapy for myself, my training with the newspaper, and my social work brought me repeatedly to the question: how can one help people in their personal growth, how can one provide them with practical help and advise them so that they can solve their problems, and thereby help them to adjust harmoniously to the society they live in?

Since almost 5 years, Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh is my religious teacher. He has constantly given me the courage and the ability to help people and he has also helped me to go deeper in my own self development. I am extremely grateful to him for his guidance and hope he is able to remain in the United States.
