To whom it may concern,

I am a graduate of La Sorbonne in Paris, France. My field of study is in literature and philosophy. I also attended Howard University and Boston University, graduating with a B.S. and M.S. in education.

My interest in philosophy developed into a desire to work with people and have a clear understanding of how society function. I have spent many years travelling and living all over the world learning different languages and understanding many different cultures. After many years abroad I came into contact with Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. I was amazed with his ability to communicate with so many types of people from all over the world. His understanding of man and society greatly interested me. Over the years I have been with Bhagwan, I have witnessed the changes not only in myself, but also in an entire group of people who live around Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. A society is formed on the basis of love, for oneself and for the one who's being has created a society of freedom and a commitment to life.

Bhagwan's very silence is a communication. It is a reminder of our own nature, our ability to love and create a life full of joy. Work becomes a worship to ourselves, to our very being. The very creator has given me an insight into man and the world. Living in a society with His presence allows us to become more aware of the creative nature of ourselves. A world is being built on an entirely different set of values. It is a society that is closer to man's nature than any other, an inspiration for love and life. Rajneeshpuram is the reality of Bhagwan's silence. It is a clear understanding of how love creates a world of peace.

Philosophies from the past are only ideas, the presence of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh brings a reality of life.
