Rajneeshpuram.

To whom it may concern,

After graduating from high school, I studied and practiced cooking in the famous "Ecole hotelière" in Lyons, France.

One of the teachers was the world famous chef Paul Bocuse. I studied there three years and after graduation, practiced this art of cooking in famous hotels and restaurants in France.

From there I started sharing my knowledge and experience around the world, in Africa, England, Australia, Japan and U.S.A.

Through these travels and contacts with so many different races, philosophies, arts, religions, my aspiration towards life started to take a new direction, seeking a meaning of where and what I was standing on.

I was successful with my profession and financial situation, having accomplished what few had in the sense of living so easily in so many different places of this world, still I was not fully satisfied.

By accident, I met some friends who introduced me to meditation.

In 1978, while living in Los Angeles, I discovered a book of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. That was the explosion. Everything came into place: the puzzle was resolved, just by reading single book. In a few phrases, the whole gestalt towards life took a new turn. At last, there was someone who had found the Key of life, and was sharing with whosoever wanted it. Words are impotent to convey what the impact with Bhagwan has been for me.

Since then, I spent all my time in Bhagwan presence. I'm still a chef doing the same work at Rajyesh Hotel in Portland, but everything has changed; the quality has changed, my work has become my worship, not a duty to perform

but a joy to celebrate, just a sheer joy of being for no reason.

Just being grateful for the love that is showered on my by Bhagwan, the one who has opened my heart and eyes

Sincerely
