My assessment of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh

Through one of my sons and my wife I have been in contact with the philosophy of Bhagwan for nearly 10 years. I have studied his books, listened to his tapes, visited India and Rajeneesh Puram in Oregon USA.

Although I am not a follower of Bhagwan I believe that his teaching is of immense value for today's world population. I have seen the results of his philosophy and its application. It gives people the selfreliance they need so badly in today's world. They learn to live in a community where the common goals are overriding selfish ambitions. It relieves people from frustrations, increases self-knowledge and thereby spreads understanding and happiness.

It rejects the use of drugs and uses meditation and many-fold trainings to achieve an improvement of the individual and his relations to his fellow-man.

Call it a religion, a philosophy, a belief. It is certainly a way of living which should be supported and aided and it is exclusively based on the personality, the strength, the kindness and love of Bhagwan their leader
