To Whom It May Concern:

The major direction of my life since graduating from college in 1972, with a degree in Interior Design, had been to fulfill some personal need to gain financial and material security. I invested years working in the Commercial Design field creating efficient and aesthetically beautiful interiors and working environments for hundreds of employees.

And yet for myself, the real Interior of myself, was not very efficient or very beautiful.

Bhagwan's entrance into my life has given me a much clearer and worthwhile direction to my life. In the past I never could see past the material end of each job I was involved in.

Living in a commune around Bhagwan has given me a stronger love of myself and in turn love and compassion for my fellow men.

and as I am involved in my work now, I feel the essence of what I create spreads that love, compassion and clarity to all those I am involved with.

I strongly feel this is true of each of Bhagwan's disciples and this benefits, in a profound way, all people in the United States and in the World.

Very truly yours,
