To Whom It May Concern;

I am Executive Producer for a major television commercial production company and over the last few years, have encountered a number of people in advertising, television and the arts-several who are close personal friends- who have demonstrated what a positive influence Mr. Baghwan has had on their lives. They have acquainted me with some of his writings which I found to be inspirational and filled with ideas of great merit.

I feel strongly that MR. Baghwan will be an asset to the U.S. He should have a place in a country built on the ideas of spiritual and intellectual freedom, where he can continue his work for those interested, but most important, where he can stand as an example that the U.S. does indeed live up to the ideals that it holds up as a standard before the world--that we are a society whose strength lies in our diversity and our ability to live side by side freely even as we embrace ideas that are not uniform.

Sincerely,

Mason Boyd
