To Whom It May Concern:

As an educator - teacher and librarian - on the high school level in the New York City educational system - I should like to express my judgment and ideas about Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh.

I have a B.A. degree (literature major) from Brooklyn College, an M.A. degree (fine arts major) from Teachers College, Columbia University, and an M.L.S. degree from Queens College, and many years of experience in teaching and influencing young people in the schools of the City of New York.

I learned about Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh when my daughter became interested in his work and philosophy. I have read most of his books. I am a regular subscriber to The Rajneesh Times which I read regularly and eagerly. I have visited Rajneeshpuram and found the constructive work at the ashram fascinating; I know many of the extremely loving and intelligent people who live and work at Rajneeshpuram and many who do not, and find these inspiring contributors to society.

As the source and inspiration of these loving and hard-working people, Bhagwan

Shree Rajneesh has made a significant contribution to the arts and sciences; and his influence continues to affect very favorably the development of culture in this country.

I look forward to positive and constructive appreciation of his work by those in a position to assure its continuance.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Alice S. Coleman
