To Whom it May Concern,

July 24, 83

Since on no silence, Reynick is an outstanding and exceptional religious leader. He doesn't even have to open his mouth yet 15,000 people chose to spend at least a week and a few hundred dollars each, just to be in his presence. His silence and his book speak for him. In his books, he advocate nonviolence for life and in his silence, he leads us to experience that nonviolence. Reverence for life, for God's creation' is the essence of religiousness.

Repeal vitality's this tradition.
Can words best duplicate, convey or highlight deep experience? - the form and splendor of a Rocky Mountain' thunderstorm? the welcome in a lover's hands?
the shimmering of a shoe brushed with dusts?

Blasphem, in his silence is an eloquent leader, showing us to our own experience of reverence.
Is this not religious tradition' at the dust? Is this not the message of Buddha? of Christ?

Repeal does not teach people to follow rules, or in his footsteps, but to find their own inner light.
Nor does he look worldly perpetuate or religious leader so often do.
He does not encourage people to withdraw. In this' he is exceptional.
"Be in the world," he has said, Participate in God's creation'. And his twinkling' eyes and resonant since remind me to take the time to enjoy it.

I find his books, topics, methods & concepts particularly useful in working with my therapy clients.
Stress and depression are typical problems of highly functional people.
~~who seek therapy~~ Diagnosis perspective and the tools he furnishes are highly effective with these people.

Once you regain the ability to enjoy life, as well as to be effective, therapy is finished.

Reynold has inspired me to develop my work in a way that inspire both my clients and my surprising psychiatrist. Bob Stern, he has inspired the cooperative effort that built a city in one year, complete with a lake and a large scale agricultural complex in a piece of third, dry land. It is my wonder he has inspired me?

I am very grateful for the presence of such a being in this country. Please advise me if there is more I can do to ensure his continued residence and facilitate his work, looking his companions and all those who feel his presence, cherish his leadership and are moved by his words and tapes.

Sincerely
Elizabeth G. Dawson M.Ed.
