To Whom it May Concern,

I am a licensed psychologist practicing in St Louis, Mo. I came to know Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh through some friends of mine who became followers of his teachings, and books he has written -- especially his talks on the sayings of Jesus. While I cannot say I am a personal follower of all his teaching, I can say I respect & appreciate -- and use -- much of what he says both in my life and as a part of my therapy.

I hope to visit his center in Oregon and to learn more first-hand. I'd be very disappointed if this man, who has made such important contributions to science, philosophy and theology in his teachings, were not available in our land of the free because his teachings threaten some who have no tolerance for a diversity of opinion.

I believe he deserves respect & appreciation for his contributions. So let me add my voice to many (over please) other voices who rejoice at the wisdom he possesses.

He can only enrich strong lives. He can take nothing from anyone who would not willingly and gladly trade their position for a vast improvement.

Sincerely,
