To whom it may concern

After I graduated Highschool as class best I set out to travel for some time before continuing my medical studies in Germany. On my journey I met Braquan Shree Rajneesh who's teachings provided a vast variety of knowledge in all areas of science I have ever known. Besides medicine the subjects I studied intensively were psychology painting and child education. There wasn't one field where he didn't show intelligent understanding in addition to refined advice of how to apply it practically. Several occasions of talking to him personally in Darshan showed me how exceptionally well he knew mine, as well as human psychology in general. Over the seven years of being his disciple I became gradually more aware of what he meant when he said that his ultimate guidance is available through silent communion with him.

As a resident of Rajneeshpuram I perform my daily worship in form of manual labour which satisfies me more than intellectual studies used to in the past. It is through a very simple and silent relationship with him that I increasingly love and understand myself. I am very grateful to evolve in his presence along with hundreds of other loving and beautiful people. Under his guidance we create an oasis out of wasteland in an intelligent way. We grow into more beautiful individuals dealing with life in an efficient yet meditative way. His ability to help humanity grow reaches far beyond the knowledge of the many professors I've known in my life.

His recognised mastery in the world of science; his guidance to individuals looking for self-mastery and a harmonious life plus his emphasis on creating a healthy beautiful environment around you where people can live in happiness and freedom, would benefit any country in the world interested in economic scientific and cultural development

Sincerely
