

August 18, 1983

To whom it may concern,

I am a graduate of Fordham University, B.A., in New York City and have spent twenty years as an actor in the professional theatre. I have also conducted acting workshops and seminars and devised and led a self-awareness group based on acting techniques.

Personally, contact with Bhagwan has changed my life. I had tried many therapies before coming to Bhagwan and they all turned out to be band aids. None covered all of me. With Bhagwan my heart was touched and the energy that became available to me, love energy, flowed into every part of my life. His therapies are a great synthesis of the most ancient and the most modern approaches available.

As an actor and workshop leader Blagovons' insights into the art of acting, as well as all the arts, improved my own ability and creative flow more than my training or experience I had previously had.

When I first saw him on video and heard him speak I knew he was the master of humor communication. His books place him among the great men of letters and his experimental therapies classify him as a great artist.

and scientist in the field of humor consciousness.

He is here now in America and is the calibre of men we have always welcomed here. The community that has grown around him in Oregon is a vital model of the creativity he inspires, all by his presence.

I ask he be allowed to remain in America so that I may continue to grow in his presence and I deeply believe him to be a great benefit to our country.

Sincerely
Sw. Mond Perit
